(Please Note on December 17, 2021, Rezolve announced that it had entered into a definitive business combination agreement with Armada Acquisition Corp. I (NASDAQ: AACI), a publicly traded special purpose acquisition company. Upon closing of the transaction, the combined company's shares are expected to trade on the NASDAQ under the ticker symbol "ZONE".)

London, UK April 21, 2022 – Rezolve, a leader in mobile commerce and engagement, and Computop, a leading payment service provider, today announced a strategic partnership agreement to combine their respective strengths in mobile engagement and payment processing to improve service for users of both globally. Please note that this press release should be read in conjunction with an announcement video available at www.rezolve.com/investors.

As part of the agreement, Computop will offer Rezolve's technology to its more than 15,000 global clients, providing them with new mobile engagement and commerce tools.

Rezolve, an enterprise SaaS platform designed from the ground up specifically for mobile commerce and engagement, is positioned to become the engine of mobile engagement that enables the transformation of interactions between consumers and merchants on mobile devices. Computop helps retailers and service providers to process their omnichannel payments securely and conveniently worldwide and was the first payment service provider in Germany, and among the first globally, to obtain PCI P2PE certification, or Point-to-Point Encryption certification.

"We are excited to announce this partnership with Computop, a German leader in payment services around the world," said Dan Wagner, Rezolve's Chairman and CEO. "This represents a great opportunity for Rezolve to extend our mobile engagement technology to their impressive list of clients around the world."

Computop's large international merchant and global marketplace partners are in industries such as retail, mobility, travel and gaming. Global customers include C&A, Fossil, Metro, Rakuten, Samsung, SIXT and Swarovski. Computop focuses on global omnichannel payment, fraud prevention, global POS, global e-commerce, in-app payments, local payments worldwide, risk management, reconciliation and accounting solutions.

"For Computop this is exciting because our business model depends on the success of our customers," said Ralf Gladis, founder and CEO of Computop. "We believe that our merchants can be more successful if they can reach out to customers with Rezolve. With Rezolve's mobile technology our merchants will be able to trigger their customers wherever they are."

After buying EOS Payments from Otto Group in 2013, Computop now processes payments for all 100 Otto retail brands. In cooperation with its network of partners, which it has expanded over many years, Computop offers a comprehensive omnichannel solution that is geared to the needs of today's market and provides merchants with seamlessly integrated payment processes. Computop's Shop modules provide worry-free integration with shop systems like Salesforce/Demandware, SAP hybris, Intershop, Magento, Oxid, Shopware, Spryker, and 20 others. With Rezolve, merchants can lead consumers directly to special offers by using mobile technology including geofencing, notifications on smartphones, Bluetooth beacons, or with watermarked advertisements.

Rezolve currently has go-to-market partner agreements with leading global players that have a combined global reach of over 20 million merchants and over 1 billion consumers across China, Asia and Europe. Rezolve's platform already serves over 196,000 of those merchants today.

For Computop customers the partnership means it will be easy to use Rezolve, because their payment processing is already integrated with Rezolve's technology. Thousands of Computop customers can now easily use Rezolve. Meanwhile, for Rezolve, the eComputop Paygate is a payment platform that offers access to more than 60 acquirers worldwide. Therefore, merchants can use their existing acquiring contracts for credit cards.
